PARISH OF NOTRE-DAME-DU-SACRÉ-CŒUR

Recognized as the “Top of the Cocagne River”, Notre-Dame was first served by the missionaries of Gêdaïc (Grande-Digue).

In 1865, Notre-Dame was part of the parish of Cocagne. Father Abbot Antoine Gosselin conducted a census of the Catholic population at Notre-Dame and recorded 45 families (235 souls). Until 1866, families practiced their religion in private homes following the loss of the chapel which was destroyed in 1861 by a strong wind.

Five years later, a small church 40 x 30 feet was built in the center of Notre-Dame, a mission of Father Vanier of the Saint-Pierre Church (Cocagne). This small church was used from 1866 until the construction of a new church in 1889.

FATHER HONORÉ OUELLET (ND 1889–1897)

A new church was built in 1889 on land donated by pioneer Pierre Bourque (Bourg). Started by Father F.X. Cormier, the construction was completed by Father Honoré Ouellet. With an established territory and the canonized church, the parish welcomed its first resident priest, Father Honoré Ouellet. According to the Acadian newspaper, l'Évangeline, Father Ouellet died on January 20, 1898, three months after leaving Notre-Dame. A source indicates that he died in the parish of Ste-Cunégonde-de-Montréal. He was vicar in Cocagne, Cap-Pelé, and Shediac. Born in Sainte-Anne-de-la-Pocatière, Kamouraska (QC) on December 13, 1834, his parents were Honoré and Marie (Bérubé) Ouellet.

FATHER PAUL DUFOUR (ND 1897-1913)

Father Dufour arrived at Notre-Dame in September 1897 as the second resident priest of the parish at a time when the community was lively and rapidly growing. He was thirty-four years old. The population increased with the arrival of people from Cocagne, Dorchester, The Glades, Beaumont, Memramcook, and Petitcodiac among others, who came to settle “up the river” with their families. During his first year, Father Dufour directed the construction work of a presbytery. In 1901, the parish expanded with the addition of MacDougall Settlement (formerly part of Grande-Digue) and two banks of the river (formerly part of Cocagne). More importantly, the name of the church and parish was officially recognized as Notre-Dame-du-Sacré-Cœur.

In 1907, Father Dufour made a trip to Europe and Palestine. Two years later, Mgr. Timothy Casey of Saint John (NB) blesses the Notre-Dame-du-Sacré-Cœur Church. Father Dufour left to join the Holy Cross Community in 1913. Born in Madawaska, Maine, in 1864 in the parish of St David, ME, he was educated at Collège Saint-Joseph (Memramcook) and at the Séminaire du Québec. He was ordained a priest in 1891 at the age of twenty-seven. His mother was Éléonore Marie Thibodeau Dufour, born in 1824 and died on May 4, 1872. His father was Narcisse Dufour, born on September 15, 1815 and died on March 15, 1897. His paternal grandparents, David Joseph Dufour and Charlotte Pothier Dufour lived in Saint-Louis-de-Kamouraska (Quebec) and they died in Saint Basile, NB. Father Paul Dufour died on January 30, 1938 in Montreal (QC). He is buried in St. Joseph Cemetery in Old Town, Penebscot, Maine. The hamlet of Dufourville is named in his honor in recognition of his many accomplishments and his great contribution during his sixteen-year stay at Notre-Dame.

The presidents of this circle were Honoré Bourgeois (1931-33), Alfred Cormier (1933-35), Raymond Cormier (1935-39), and Napoléon Bourque (1939-41). The call of young men to the world war, the organization saw its end in 1941.

The Notre-Dame-du-Sacré-Cœur Church marked its 50th anniversary in 1936. The mass was celebrated by Father Désiré Allain accompanied by Father Philippe Robichaud (originally from Notre-Dame and serving the parish of Shemogue) and Father Placide LeBlanc (Port-Félix, Nova Scotia). During the evening of activities, the Kent deputy, Ernest Langis (Guéguen), and the federal one, (Alexandre Doucet), addressed the crowd gathered in the parish hall.

The next few years saw several replacements beginning with Father Arthur Léger (1940-43), Father Germain Lemire (1943-44), and Father Émile Ouellet (1944-46) who witnessed the fire that destroyed his church. The parish hall was therefore used for religious ceremonies.
